COLUMBUS CITIZENS' FEARS ARE ALLAYED BY MAJOR'S CALL

Base Commander Says Defensive Measure Merely Precautionary.

SOME LEAVE TOWN, HOWEVER

Promise to Notify Townspeople in Event Trouble Is Anticipated; Soldiers Sleep on Arms to be in Shape for Action; More Trenches.

By Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, N. M., May 11.—Fears expressed by some of the credulous residents of Columbus were allayed today by a call made by Major W. R. Sample, base commander. Major Sample assured the town people that the defensive measure being taken by the troops are merely precautionary and that in the event of anticipated trouble he will notify them immediately. In spite of these assurances, however, a few left town.

A company of infantry slept on their arms last night that they might be prepared for action if trouble should develop.

Construction of trenches and earth works around the camp continued today. These are being put some distance beyond the camp.

CAVALRY CROSSES BORDER.

MARATHON, Tex., May 11.—Major Langhorne with his two troops of the 8th cavalry crossed the Rio Grande into Mexico last night, and are making their way rapidly southward today.

OPERATIONS UNDETERMINED

Muster in National Guard for Period of Enlistment.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 11.—Further indications that American army operations at the Mexican border are still indeterminate as to time, were given today at official quarters. It was announced at the War Department that the Nations' Guard of the three states will be mustered into the army for the period of their enlistment and with no specific time of federal service stipulated.

Secretary Baker says mustering officers in charge of the militia mobilization have inquired whether President Wilson had fixed any definite term for enlistment. Because it is not known how long the guard will be required, Secretary Baker explained that it was ordered that the National Guardsmen be enrolled for the terms of their stated enlistment.

STRIKE IMPROVES

Battalion of the Eighteenth at Turtle Creek Sent Back to Armory.

By Associated Press.

PITTSBURG, May 11.—Conditions in the Turtle Creek strike zone had improved so today that preparations were made to send one battalion of the 18th infantry to its armory in Pittsburg. Announcement was made that other battalions would be sent home within the next few days. The cavalry will likely be kept on duty until next week.

It was estimated that 1,000 additional men reported for work at the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company before the gates were closed. Machinists in many other plants throughout the Pittsburg district are still on strike for an 8-hour day and moulders who have been out since last December have made no move to go back.

5,000 GET INCREASE.

DENVER, Colo., May 11.—Five thousand employes of the Colorado Fuel & Iron Company's steel mill at Pueblo have been granted an increase in wages, adding $10,000 to the company's monthly payroll, according to announcement by officials of the company here today. The increase is effective May 1 averages approximately 10%. A similar increase was granted last February.

MEMBERS HOME TO VOTE

Congressmen Leave Capital to Participate in Primaries.

Special to The Courier

WASHINGTON, May 11.—Many members of the Pennsylvania delegation in Congress, in fact the great majority of them, will be home over the primaries next Tuesday. Some are already there and will remain until next week, unless they should be called back to the national capital by some matter of importance not now foreseen.

Representative Keister is in Scottdale where he has been for a week or so, and expects to remain until the primaries are over. Representative Hopwood plans to leave here Friday night to remain at home until the middle of the following week. Representative Crago probably will be in Pennsylvania also next Tuesday. Representative Temple was prepared to leave here tonight, as he is to deliver a commencement address at the Fredericktown high school on Friday, and he will remain over unless urgent business should require his presence here in the meantime.

HYDROPLANE WRECKED IN PLUNGE INTO POTOMAC

Three Injured Occupants Rescued by Tug Boat, and Two Are Missing; Propeller Off Axle.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 11.—One of the large hydro-aeroplanes which had been flying between Newport News and Washington fell into the Potomac river near Mount Vernon, Virginia, early today and was wrecked. Three of the occupants badly injured, were rescued by a tug. Two are missing.

The machine fell about 100 feet. The tug boat which went to the rescue picked up three men. Two of them were rushed to Alexandria to a hospital. The tug boat then returned to search for the two missing men.

Pilot J. C. MacCauley of Newport News and Mechanician Philip Utter, bruised and badly shaken, were taken to the Alexandria hospital. The third rescued man received only slight bruises.

The two missing men are Louis Kraft, a mechanician from the Newport News Aviation camp and Charles Good of Ohio, a student aviator.

The machine left the Washington Navy yard about 7 o'clock this morning for a flight to the Atlantic coast aeronautical station at Newport News. When about a mile from Mount Vernon, opposite Bryan's point, one of the propellors which had worked lose was thrown off its axle and the machine plunged into the river.

AUSTRIA'S GREAT IRON AND STEEL INDUSTRY GROWS

Two Corporations Show Big Profits for the Past Year.

AVERAGE WAGE $4 PER WEEK

One Company Earns $1,000,000, Doubling Previous Year; 21 Per Cent Dividend; Austro-Hungarian Commander-in-Chief a Stockholder.

By Associated Press.

VIENNA, May 11. Austria's two greatest iron and steel corporations have just published their balance-sheets for last year, and both show huge profits.

The Alpinen Montangesellschaft shows a clear profit of nearly four million dollars as compared with less than $1,800,000 in 1914. The dividend paid was 21 per cent. In 1914 it was only 11 per cent. The board of administration fees and salaries and other allowances amounted to considerably more than $300,000 dollars.

The second corporation, the Oesterreichischen Berg und Huettenwerksgesellschaft also did very well last year, making a clear profit of $1,700,000 which was $600,000 more than in the preceding year. The dividend was 18 per cent against 12½ per cent in 1914. These are the highest profits made since the corporation was organized. The principal stockholder is the Archduke Frederick at present commander-in-chief of the Austro-Hungarian forces in the field and reputed to be the wealthiest member of the Hapsburg imperial family, next to the Emperor.

The total number of employes is 14,500, and the aggregate wages for the year amounted to less than 15,000,000 crowns, ($3,200,00), which works out at an average of $220 a year for each person, not much more than four dollars a week. The total payroll is, as the Vienna Arbeiter Zeitung points out, less than double the amount of the profits.

In the reports of both corporations it is interesting to note that their production increased but little; their great profits were due to the rise in the price of iron. It appears that the prices of bar-iron rose 21 per cent, steel rails 15 per cent, and miscellaneous iron goods 18 per cent, above those in 1914. Coal was 15 per cent dearer.

EXAMINING BOARD EMPHASIZES NEED OF NIGHT SCHOOLS

Lack of Preparation for Mining Certificates is Manifest.

ONLY FOUR FOREMEN QUALIFY

Out of 27 Applicants: Of 47 Fire Boss Candidates Only 29 Made the Required Percentages; Oral Examinations Will be Held Next Tuesday.

Mine Inspector P. J. Walsh of the Ninth Inspection District, has announced the names of candidates who successfully passed the examinations for mine foremen and fire boss' certificates held in Connellsville on April 11, 12, 13 and 14.

For first grade mine foremen's certificates the following made the required percentages: Joseph Grimes and Frank J. Dunn, Wyano, Pa.; Joseph A. Greaves, Dunbar, and William H. Finerty, Bitner.

For second grade certificates there were no candidates.

For assistant mine foremen, Frank Mitchell and Joseph Salter, Mount Pleasant; John H. Brown and Hugh Logan, Connellsville; Anthony Gilmore, Dunbar; Charles Nicholson, Yukon; Frank Shudy and John L. Miner, Wyano.

Fire boss: Frank Krause, Thomas Keenan, John A. Mullen, Loise L. McKeever, Alex. E. Bennett, Thomas J. Smith and John D. Duncan, Connellsville; John Popovich, James Sidehamel and Stephen Bendzak, Mount Pleasant; F. D. Gaffney, William Higgins and Thomas Hatley, Madison; George W. Harris and Robert Littlehales, Wyano; James W. McClain, Patrick Maloy and Casper Marcinlak, Dunbar; George Selgham, Stauffer, and Theodore F. Kramer, Alverton.

Before the certificates were awarded the candidates who have passed the written examinations must undergo oral examinations. These will be held at Inspector Walsh's residence, 209 East Patterson avenue on Tuesday, May 16, beginning at 8.30 A. M.

The papers filed by a number of the candidates indicated great lack of preparation for the examination both as to a knowledge of the subjects and the fundamentals of composition. In the judgment of the examining board the need for additional night mining schools was greatly emphasized by the poor showing made by several of the candidates. Out of a class of 27 taking the first grade mine foremen's examination only four were successful. Of 47 taking the fire boss' examination 20 made the required percentages.

ATTACKED IN HOME

Negro, Employed to Spade Garden, Assaults Mrs. Rosenblum.

A negro that had been summoned to the home of J. M. Rosenblum on Snyder street to spade a garden this morning, attacked Mrs. Rosenblum about 9.30 o'clock when she called him into the house to give him a breakfast. The man after striking the woman took a pocketbook containing $10 and fled. The police are looking for him but no trace has yet been found.

Mrs. Rosenblum was in bad condition after the rough treatment given her by the negro. The man struck her in the face causing the left eye to swell and also kicked her in the left side of the chest and on the hip. Her mouth was bleeding and she was suffering from other bruises inflicted by his fists.

A neighbor woman found Mrs Rosenblum in her home and Dr. H. C. Hoffman was called. Her wounds were dressed and she was resting well at noon.

POSSESSIONS OF GARBAGE COMPANY SOLD FOR $1,161

Teams and Wagons Bought by New Garbage Contractors, Who Make First Collection Today.

The possessions of the garbage company were sold at auction yesterday afternoon by Auctioneer Joseph Crossland. Everything bought in by the city when the garbage plant was purchased was sold, excepting the plant itself, and the proceeds amounted to $1,161.25. Some of the buyers paid cash but council gave anyone six months' credit.

The auction was held at 2 o'clock and the articles for sale went rapidly. There was a buyer for everything and several for some of the property. Walter Artis and James Francis, to whom the contract for collecting the garbage of the city was given by council last evening, bought the teams and all but one wagon. The pigs and other things for sale by the council were bought by men from all over the county. Several local men owning farms purchased the pigs, paying between $25 and $26 for the large ones.

The first collection of garbage under the new ownership took place today. The garbage ordinance was passed and the contract for the renting of the plant awarded last evening. James Francis and Walter Artis, who now have charge of the plant, will be assisted by the present manager Edward Lang until Saturday, in order to acquaint them with the work.

SENTIMENT LEANS MORE AND MORE TO JUSTICE HUGHES

Believed He Will Accept if Nomination is Offered Him.

ONLY RELUCTANTLY RESIGN

Republican Leaders Confident That His Nomination Would Mean Party Success; Equally Sure Roosevelt Cannot Win; Anyone in a Deadlock.

Special to The Courier.

WASHINGTON, May 11.—Political sentiment today seems to be leaning more and more to the belief that Associate Justice Hughes, of the United States Supreme Court, will be the Republican candidate for President. Those close to the political situation are of opinion that he will accept the nomination if it is offered to him, although it is known that efforts have been made and will continue to be made to have Justice Hughes remain on the bench. Furthermore, it is stated on excellent authority that Justice Hughes himself is averse to leaving the high court over which he some day probably would preside as chief justice if he remains. He is exceedingly attached, it is said, to his judicial work, preferring it to any other; even for the high honor of being president of the United States. It is understood he would only with the greatest reluctance resign from the already exalted position he occupies.

But it is the growing belief of many politicians here that Justice Hughes, despite efforts to have him decide otherwise will accept the nomination if it is offered him. It is pointed out that he has never made any statement which would prevent him from being the Republican candidate. He has said that he was not a candidate for the nomination and that he was entirely out of politics. But that is all. He has never said that he would not accept, although attempts have been made to force from him a definite expression on this point.

The view of those members of the bench who have been trying to persuade Justice Hughes that he should not get into the political game again, is that it would establish a precedent from which the highest tribunal in the land should remain free. They believe that the Supreme Court should be absolutely free from any suspicion, even the most remote, that members of that body had political aspirations in mind, the feeling of the judicial element being that such aspirations almost unconsciously might be made a factor in molding the opinion of the judge in formulating his decisions on important matters. He should be entirely free, they hold, from any such tendency.

BOAT BUILDING IS TO BE REVIVED AT BROWNSVILLE

By Brown Interests, Owners of Alicia Mines, for Purpose of

TRANSPORTING COAL BY RIVER

Which Promises to Develop Into a Larger River Industry; Contracts Awarded and Construction to Begin Soon; Restoring Activity.

Brownsville is to have a revival of boat building, an industry which once flourished in that place and, in fact, was the most important line of manufacture during the days when the town was the head of navigation on the Monongahela river.

The resumption of the industry is to be on a comparatively small scale for the present and will be confined to the construction of craft designed to carry coal to down river points. W. Harry Brown, owner and operator of the Alicia mine and coke plant is the moving force behind the enterprise, which is to comprise the erection of a boat yard to be located near the Alicia plant. It is said the Brown interests, which were earlier engaged in a line of boat-building at Brown station on the lower river, have had the plan under consideration for some time.

The contract for the construction of the marine ways is said to have been awarded and that work on the excavation will be commenced immediately. The plant will be built on the historic race course upon which Captain Sam. Brown, father of the present owner of the land, trained many of his speedy racers when he was one of the turf kings of the country several years ago. The docks will be permanent structures of reinforced concrete and designed for both the construction and repair of boats and barges.

The intention to revive this industry at this point gives promise that the shipment of coal by barge, which method has been employed by the Vesta Coal Company, at its mines at California and Fredericktown for a number of years will be developed into a larger river industry. Although the owner of Alicia mine is the petitioner in a case before the Interstate Commerce Commission for extension of the Pittsburg freight rate on coal shipments, his preparations to ship by water would indicate that he means to go after a coal market from which he would be debarred in event of an unfavorable decision in the rail rate case. The Brown interests now own two steamboats which are now in the river service. It is presumed that the fleet will be enlarged either by purchase of other boats or the construction of new ones.

Associated with the intelligence respecting the proposed restoration of boat building there is revival of the rumor that the Clairton By-Product Coke Company will secure its coal from mines controlled by associated enterprises and that it will be transported by barge to the new by-product plant now in course of construction at Clairton.

So far as has been established by authentic history boat building began in Brownsville in 1812 when Daniel French established a yard in what is now South Brownsville. The Enterprise, the first boat to make a trip to New Orleans, was built at this yard. During the Civil war a number of boats used by the Union forces in the conflicts on and along the Mississippi river were constructed at the Brownsville yards. For ten more years following the war the business thrived, the banks of the river being lined with yards. Late in the seventies the industry began to decline and eventually it was abandoned.

SECOND CLEAN-UP DAY WILL END HEALTH BOARD PROGRAM

Well Pleased With Manner in Which Most Citizens Responded; Notify Owners of Vacant Lots.

The second day of the cleanup of the city will probably finish the work in most of the five sections. The South Side, the largest district, will probably be the last in line, and to help the work out there an automobile truck is on the job.

About the same number of men as were at work yesterday appeared for duty this morning and were divided equally among the teams. On the West Side where the teams did not make much progress yesterday morning on account of the great number of loads taken from between First and Fourth streets, good progress is being made today. In the upper part of the district there were not so many loads and it did not take the teams so long to get over the ground.

The contractors of the city are helping out in the labor question. Contractors Duggan and O'Connor of the West Side have men and teams working. The Board of Health is pleased with the way most of the citizens responded to the clean-up movement. At almost every gate the refuse was piled up ready for the wagons. Some vacant lots had not been cleaned and their owners will be notified. It will be necessary for those who did not have their rubbish ready for the teams to have it hauled away at their own expense.

CATHOLIC CHURCH LAW FEATURES A TRIAL IN COURT

Hearing in Case of Father Ulrich vs. John Hanisek and Others.

AN INJUNCTION PROCEEDING

Written in Latin, Church Canon Is First Translated Into Slavish by Priest, Then Into English by Interpreter Kaminsky; $8 Resolution.

Special to The Courier

UNIONTOWN, May 11.—Catholic church law was translated in court today from Latin into Slavish and from Slavish into English. Rev Stephen Ulrich, pastor of the St. John Evangelical Slavish Roman Catholic Church of Connellsville, read the Latin and translated it into Slavish to Court Interpreter John Kaminsky. Kaminsky then translated it into English to Judge J. Q. Van Swearingen.

The church law was introduced as testimony in the hearing of the injunction proceedings of Father Ulrich against John Hanisek, Michael Hatzcella, Andrew Danko and John Marhefko, members of the church committee of Father Ulrich's congregation. The action is to restrain them from interfering with services, threatening the priest and to compel them to turn over to Father Ulrich as treasurer of the church about $500 which they collected from the parishioners and have on deposit in the Colonial National Bank in Connellsville.

The trouble, according to the testimony of Father Ulrich, grew out of the church committee adopting a resolution to pay themselves $3 per day for auditing the church books and $4 per day for countersigning the checks of the pastor. This resolution was sent to Right Rev. Regis Canevin, bishop of Pittsburg, for approval, and the approval was denied. On instructions from Bishop Canevin the four members, who are in court as defendants, were removed from the church board.

Father Ulrich testified today that he has been a priest in the Pittsburg diocese for the last five years. He said that each church may make its own rules, but that such rules must secure the approval of the bishop before they become effective. This approval, he testified, must be given in writing. He declared he knows of no church where the members of the church committee receive pay for their services.

Father Ulrich is represented by Attorney John Duggan, Jr., of Connellsville, and the members of the church committee have Attorneys L. B. Brownfield and Elias Goodstein as their counsel.

MUST GET SOME WORK DONE OR LOSE CONTRACT

Engineer Foust Complains of Conditions on Isabella Road.

BAD TREATMENT IS ALLEGED

At Last Night's Meeting Council Awards Garbage Contract to James Francis and Walter Artis; Solons Tire of Time in Reading Minutes.

That the contract for the paving of Isabella road will be taken from Bernard O'Connor unless he shows a disposition to do something in the next week, was decided at council last evening when City Engineer S. M. Foust complained of conditions at that place. If O'Connor is allowed to keep the contract a measure to make it necessary to get some work done on the road will be passed.

Engineer Foust also complained of the treatment he had received at the hands of Charles O'Connor, claiming that he had "received more abuse there than ever before at any other place." He told council that he had written a letter to Contractor O'Connor asking that the foreman be taken from the job.

The garbage ordinance was passed and the contract for gathering the garbage of the city was awarded to James Francis and Walter Artis, who in their bid sometime ago offered to run the plant and allow the city 10% of all money collected. The books of the company will be submitted to council once a month. The only other bidder, W. L. Corbin, offered to take charge of the plant paying the city $25 per year.

The first hour of the meeting was taken up reading the minutes. City Clerk Bixler commenced with the meeting held February 14 and read up to the one held last evening. The clerk out-read the patience of the councilmen for all of them were weary of hearing him long before he finished. "What's the use of reading those things anyway," asked the mayor. "Oh, just because they're written here," was Mr. Bixler's reply. The session did not begin to do business until 8.15.

Austin and Matthews, who are paving Wills road, submitted an estimate of $3,725.67 for the amount of work already done. Superintendent of Streets Duggan reported that Contractor J. I. Dick was doing well and that the work of Austin and Matthews is progressing.

Council authorized Contractors Austin and Matthews, working on Wills road, to leave an opening in the curb for an entrance to the Chestnut Hill cemetery, a petition to that effect having been presented.

C. A. Wagner, manager of the Globe Theatre, asked council for permission to extend the booth of his new moving picture house, which is being erected on the site next to the present building, four feet over the alley in the rear of the building. In the new Globe the audience will face the street instead of looking on the screen at the rear of the house. The booth will be in the rear. The requested extension will be 23 feet above the ground. There is nothing in the city ordinances prohibiting such an encroachment on an alley and the matter was referred to the public safety committee. In the extended four feet of the booth the machines will be placed and in case of fire in the films it would be possible for doors to be dropped, confining the blaze to the one portion of the booth, it is said, leaving the theatre in safety.

Lloyd Shaw, a representative of the Shaw & Barner insurance agency, presented a new proposition in the line of insurance for the volunteer firemen. Recently the company offered to insure 20 firemen for $160. Another local insurance man offered to insure them for $415, but did not make the proposal until after Shaw's figures had been published, it is alleged. Taking the matter up with the special agent of the Ocean Accident & Guarantee Association it is possible for the company to make a price of $412.

The 29 members of the volunteer fire company will be insured both while at their regular work and when at a fire. In case of accident an indemnity of $7.50 will be paid to them each week and $500 in case of death. Should a member of the fire company resign the insurance is transferable. The insurance also covers asphyxiation. A question was raised by Councilman West as to whether the money of the firemen could be used when the insurance covered them while at their regular work, but no action was taken.

The council passed a resolution that the volunteer fire company be paid the $320 license fee collected for Thonet's Great Atlantic Shows, which gave a week's performance recently on the West Side.

The purchasing agent was authorized to advertise for bids for the changing of the present chemical wagon to the automobile chassis which was purchased at a recent meeting. Bids will be received until 7 o'clock May 15.

A bill for $27.50 was sent to council by Jack Mitchell for raising the floor and varnishing the office of the city engineer in the City Hall. The next meeting will be held May 15.

GOVERNOR BRUMBAUGH FAILS TO EXPLAIN $5,000 CHARGE

"The Governor never abused my confidence nor my money," said Colonel Louis J. Kolb, a member of Governor Brumbaugh's military staff, in Philadelphia last night when questioned about his contribution of $5,000 to Dr. Brumbaugh's campaign.

Beyond the simple statement that Colonel Kolb told the truth, Governor Brumbaugh refused to discuss the charges made by Representative Isadore Stern of Philadelphia.

The charge of Representative Stern that Governor Brumbaugh had failed to file an accounting, as required by the corrupt practices act, of a $5,000 deposit for campaign purposes was the subject uppermost in the discussion of politicians in Philadelphia.

The replies of Governor Brumbaugh and Colonel Kolb to Representative Stern's charge were considered evasive.

Representative Stern last night made this statement: "In absolute confidence of my own re-election to the next session of the Legislature I want to emphasize that part of my statement in which I said that if Governor Brumbaugh does not himself take steps to dispose of the allegations resting against him of having violated the corrupt practices act of Pennsylvania, I shall institute such an investigation early in the next session of the Legislature, and, if the findings warrant it, will follow that by impeachment proceedings.

"I want to take this opportunity to say, too, that the next Pennsylvania Legislature will show a vast majority of its members loyal to the leadership of Senator Penrose, just as the success of his leadership will be demonstrated in the election of practically an entire unpledged delegation to the Republican National Convention."

SUPT. OF GOVERNOR'S PALACE RETURNS TO THE PHILIPPINES

After spending 17 years in the Philippine Islands, where he served as an American soldier, a policeman and in the palace of the governor, Nicholas Kaminsky, who was feared in this vicinity, will leave Friday for the islands again, after spending the past four months here visiting old acquaintances. He called at The Courier office yesterday afternoon to give a story of his travels before going back to the eastern country.

Kaminsky was born in Germany, but while a small child he and his parents came to Fayette county, his father entering the mines at Trotter. When Nick was 13 years old his father was killed at work and he grew up with relatives. In 1899 he enlisted in the army and was sent to the Philippine Islands with Regiment M, 41st infantry. He says that on the way to the Islands the soldiers became so seasick that the guard had to be relieved three or four times on each shift.

He tells of incidents of the trip to the islands and relates some interesting facts that he and his comrades observed on the passage. In going through the Suez Canal he says, ships seen in the distance appeared to be riding on the sand. At Columbo, India, elephants were seen carrying big timbers for shipping.

After he had been a policeman for the Manila government for three months Kaminsky was appointed guard for ex-President Taft, when he was governor of the island. At the present time Kaminsky is superintendent of the governor's Manachan Palace which place he will resume on returning. He will return via Vancouver, British Columbia.

PENNSYLVANIA GUARD MAY LEAVE FOR BORDER DUTY

Details Completed for Immediate Action; Regular Army Officers Laying Out Camp Sites.

Special to The Courier.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 11.—Authorities on military matters expressed the view today that within a few days not only the Pennsylvania National Guard, but the guard of several states would be on the way to the Mexican border. So widespread is this belief here that the issuance of official orders, at any minute, would not cause the least surprise.

It is known that direct orders have gone out to the National Guard of every state not now under orders, to "get ready," but all of them may not be called upon at once. Brigadier General A. L. Mills, chief of the Bureau of Militia Affairs, with his assistants and several stenographers worked practically all of last night in connection with the Mexican situation. It is assumed General Mills was transmitting confidential instructions to National Guard headquarters.

It is known further that all details have been completed looking to immediate action, once it is decided to transmit the further call for state troops. Regular army officers, according to dispatches from the border, are busy laying out additional camp sites, and this is believed to be in anticipation of the early arrival of large bodies of troops.

KEEP LOOKING YOUNG

It's Easy—If You Know Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle.

Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, are gentle in their action, yet always effective.

They bring about that exuberance of spirit, that natural buoyancy which should be enjoyed by everyone, by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities.

You will know Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets by their olive color. 10c and 25c per box. All druggists.

WIMLER AND PATSY BRANNIGAN FIGHT A 10-ROUND DRAW

Featherweights in Ring Before Nonpariel Athletic Club at Beaver Falls.

WIMLER GOES TO JOHNSTOWN

Will Go Ten Rounds With Orange Kegg at that Place; On Saturday Evening He Will Fight 15 Rounds With George Chaney at Baltimore.

Eddie Wimler, the West Side pugilist, who is making a trip through Pennsylvania, Maryland and New York, meeting featherweights of note, fought his first match with Patsy Brannigan at Beaver Falls last evening. The bout went for 10 rounds but both were in such excellent condition that neither could hurt the other and the fight ended a draw.

Wimler and Brannigan have always met, fought and departed on equal terms, neither being able to defeat the other. The two men are one set of featherweights that are practically the same size. Wimler or Brannigan, when they do not fight each other are always fighting some ma nthat is bigger than them but they always hold their own. Yet neither is better than the other. The fans always get a good fight when they attend one at which Brannigan and Wimler meet. Both men go into the mill with a vim and hit hard and telling blows. The fight at Beaver Falls closed the boxing season there and the fans were delighted with the topping off climax. The fight was a go between bells in all the rounds.

Wimler went to Johnstown today where he will spend his time resting up. Tomorrow he has another hard bout on with Orange Kegg at that place. The fight will also go for ten rounds. Kegg is a fast man although he does not have Wimler's punch but the bout is certain to be a hard one. The bout is a semi-final on one of the finest boxing cards ever presented in the Flood City.

Wimler's hardest bout, however, will be Saturday evening when he meets George Chaney, one of the cleverest of featherweights at Baltimore in a 15 round fight. It was reported that Wimler was to fight 20 rounds at that city but 15 rounds is as many as the law permits. Other fights will follow in Buffalo, N. Y., next week.

SOMERSETER DISAPPEARS

Well Known Automobile Dealer Writes He Will Never Return.

Special to The Courier.

SOMERSET, May 11.—John Airsman, well known local automobile dealer, yesterday disappeared from home. He asked his brother to look after his wife. The letter was post-marked Pittsburg.

Airsman went to Pittsburg with E. F. Stahl and had engaged to drive a Ford car home. Mr. Stahl bought a Mitchell touring car in the city and drove home in it.

In the letter to his brother Airsman enclosed a receipt for a Ford car which he placed in a Pittsburg garage. He was married five or six years ago and is a young man of temperate habits. His friends and relatives can assign no reason for his strange conduct.

AERO CLUB URGES NATIONAL GUARD TO DEVELOP PLANES

Militia Being Equipped With Aeroplanes Purchased With Public Subscriptions.

Special to The Courier.

NEW YORK, May 10.—Asking the militia to do with public subscriptions what the army and navy cannot do because the administration is disregarding the advice of the experts and is not asking for sufficient appropriations to organize the air service in the army and navy, the Aero Club of America and other organizations co-operating, urged the heads of the militia of the 48 states to make every effort to develop this branch of the service, so as to have some aeroplanes and trained men with which to meet an emergency.

For over a week, recently, the national guard of New York held a distinction of which the guard and the officials of the Aero Club of America and the contributors to the national aeroplane fund would feel proud, if it were not that the distinction comes from having two up-to-date brand new aeroplanes in commission in the guard, while the United States Army had to discontinue its air service in Mexico because there was not a single aeroplane left for service.

Shame and disgust over the plight of the army aero corps prevent enjoyment of such distinction.

These two aeroplanes were two of four machines purchased by the national guard in the past months with funds contributed through the national aeroplane fund and direct by public-spirited citizens, who realize that as the army has been unable to organize and equip a single aero squadron in the nine years that followed the issuing of the specifications for the first army aeroplane, and Secretary Baker has only asked for enough funds to organize and equip two aeroplane squadrons. It is up to the public to take a hand and help organize volunteer aero squadrons.

At the Theatres

SOISSON THEATRE.

"THE IRON CLAW."—The Pathe Company presents Pearl White today at the Soisson Theatre in the celebrated new serial, "The Iron Claw." The first episode is a thriller and is called "The Vengeance of Legar." It is an unusually strong play and is superior to the "Exploits of Elaine." The Gold Seal two reel drama, "The Other Half," has G. Raymond Nye, Roberta Wilson and Eddie Polo in the cast. It is a vital story of the underworld and tells of a daughter of a crook who married a society man. "The Unexpected," is a Rex comedy drama with Grace Cunard and Francis Ford. It is a pretty little tale of Betty's adventures with the Mexicans. "Tillie's War Brides," is an imp comedy with William Garwood and Elsie Earl in the leads. It is a laughable farce with no plot to speak of. Tomorrow the Equitable company presents Lenore Ulrich in the five reel drama, "The Better Woman." Love, jealously, hate, remorse, repentance and final success struggle for supremacy in the "The Better Woman." The rise of Kate Tripler from the rough environment of a western town through a web of intrigue and crime, to the place she wins by her heroism as the loved and honored wife of a successful engineer, reveals a wonderful example of how success follows patient effort, aided by an overwhelming love. At the crucial moment she shows herself to be a better woman than the one the engineer was engaged to before he met Kate, and her final triumph makes a powerful appeal to the imagination.

GLOBE THEATRE.

"THE CLEW."—Episode eight of "The Strange Case of Mary Page," the interesting serial featuring Edna Mayo and Henry Walthall, is being presented today. In "The Clew" there is no lack of action in the visualized testimony of the witness examined during the session of the trial of Mary Page. A plot to entrap Langdon when he runs against Pollock for Congress is shown and Mary is implicated in the affair. The new clew is given to Langdon by a detective who informs him that Pollock had a quarrel with several men over a card game the night before the murder. Tomorrow Florence Rockwell will be starred in "He Fell in Love With His Wife," a five part Paramount attraction. The story opens with a situation that grips your interest and holds it to the finish. Many and unexpected complications arise, but Florence Rockwell as Alida Armstrong, gives portrayal of a charm and sweetness that completely win the audience. Forrest Stanley as James Holcroft, is the same fine looking manly actor that has appeared in other productions from the Pallas studios. Monday Ethel Barrymore, who stands pre-eminent in the ranks of the stellar artists of the stage and screen will appear in "The Kiss of Hate," a Metro attraction in five parts. Miss Barrymore is supported by a notable cast, which includes H. Cooper Cliffe, the noted English actor.

ARCADE THEATRE.

"BLUE BLOOD AND RED."—A five part Fox drama written and directed by Raould Walsh is the attraction today at the Arcade. The picture was witnessed by large crowds yesterday. "Blue Blood and Red" is the first real outdoor Western picture produced by William Fox and is redolent of the roundup and prairies. George Walsh and Doris Pawn, supported by other star players, are featured. Tomorrow Fritzi Brunette in the role of Nadia, the temptress, will be seen in "Unto Those Who Sin." The production is a five part daringly sensational drama of power and appeal. That the wages of sin are death, is proven by the life story of Nadia, who lured from the straight and narrow way to the bright lights, ease and the love of purple and fine linen, finally reaps the tares and thistles of a misspent life. The story of Nadia is a tale that is sordid and yet fascinating; it is a life sermon that is too often unheeded and yet we can never blind our eyes to its significance. As ye sow so shall ye reap, and yet the lure of wealth continues to be irresistible to many.

MEYERSDALE.

MEYERSDALE, May 11.—The vocal recital given on Tuesday evening in Amity Hall by the pupils of Miss Clara Egerton of Johnstown, who organized a class in vocal culture in Meyersdale last October, was well attended and each number was well rendered. The pupils were assisted by H. M. Cook of Meyersdale, who gave a 'cello solo, and Miss Betty Johnson who gave two readings and Frank Roth, a sol, the two latter being from Johnstown. A silver offering was lifted for the benefit of the Young People's Guild of the Reformed Church.

Miss Mame Platt left yesterday for Johnstown where she will visit friends for several weeks.

Turks Outdo Themselves in Paying Honors to Von Wackensen

Field Marshall von Mackensen, next to von Hindenburg the greatest of German army heroes, has been visiting Turkey and, according to German newspapers, has received an extraordinary enthusiastic reception from the Ottoman allies of the Germans. Constantinople was decorated with flags and bunting for him and thousans of peasants traveled from outlying districts to the capital to greet the German general. The picture shows him inspecting the guard of honor at the railroad station in the Turkish capital.

Ice Co. Prize Winners.

The Yough Ice & Storage Company has announced the following prize winners in the guessing contest on the hundred-pound cake of ice that was allowed to melt on Brimstone Corner Saturday evening. The ice melted in 26 hours which time was guessed by four contestants—Mrs. Blanche Dewlis, Joseph Carotti, Adolph Herzberg and Joe Megare. The second prize goes to Patsy Earl, whose guess was 26 hours 21½ minutes, and the third to Tony Calguire, whose guess was 36 hours, 5 minutes. The guesses ranged from 8 hours to 72 hours.—Adv.

THE KOLB CHECK.

The Pittsburg Gazette Times, which is responsible for the first indictment of Governor Brumbaugh for having received campaign contributions which he failed to account for, has this to say of the second count inserted by a Philadelphia member of the Legislature:

"Martin G. Brumbaugh's plight would be pitiful were he less indifferent publicly to the enormity of the offenses by which he has brought shame upon the commonwealth which has honored him. Publicly indifferent, we say, because there is reason to believe that the Governor flaunts himself before the people against his will; that he poses before audiences in various parts of the state at the command of the sordid political faction which has annexed him for what it can get out of him. He refused to meet anyone when publicity was given to Representative Stern's charge that he had received from Colonel Kolb $5,000 for campaign purposes and had failed to account for it as required by law. He had nothing to say to that. Nor will he make any statement, according to his spokesman.

"Almost any man accused of such a serious offense would make a denial. Even a clumsy one, such as that which Governor Brumbaugh attempted in the case of David B. Oliver's campaign contribution of $1,000, would have indicated some understanding of his situation. A word from him might be expected to relieve the minds of his friends, at least. Silence can be construed only as an admission of the truth of the charge. Colonel Kolb's denial that he gave Governor Brumbaugh any money for which the recipient did not account will not satisfy. In truth, an affidavit by the Governor will have little effect in refutation of Stern's circumstantial story. He has made one affidavit which has been conclusively proved false. He has failed to produce the letter which he said he had to establish the truth of his assertion, humiliating to the whole state, that he had accepted a thousand dollars as charity."

Colonel Kolb's explanation of the transaction is highly mystifying. It neither affirms nor denies. It glitters like brass buttons, but it does not satisfy the hunger for information. It sounds like the deliverance of one who feels that he has fooled the public.

But the public is not the fool. It seldom is. Representative Stern is a candidate for reëlection, and he announces that he expects to be reëlected, and that he will bring impeachment proceedings against Governor Brumbaugh unless the Kolb check is accounted for in a more lucid manner.

HANDICAPED.

Clean-Up Day in Connellsville this year lacks the enthusiasm and the vigor of the efforts put forth during the past couple years, when the work was done by private initiative and when ambition to do it well was the ruling motive.

It was a novelty then; it is an old story now, and it seems to be getting tiresome.

Two years ago there were plenty of men with nothing to do; this year there is lots to do, and not enough to do it. This makes a difference in Clean-Up Day, too.

The Board of Health is working under a handicap, but it seems to be doing very well under the circumstances. The work has stretched out into two days. It should be prolonged a week if necessary to its proper completion.

The Board of Health has put its hand to the plow and should on no account give over its good work until the field is properly plowed.

ON TO MEXICO!

Representative Crago has presented to Congress an official report of the quick mobilization of the Tenth Regiment, called upon for riot duty, as an evidence of the preparedness of the Pennsylvania militia for actual service.

The report has been so convincing that it is intimated at Washington the Pennsylvania boys will be called out for duty in Mexico.

Mexico is a long way from home and some of the soldiers perhaps didn't join the army with the expectation of being sent out of the state unless actual war existed with another nation. But they are to a man not only prepared but willing to fight the battles of the country whenever called upon and wherever dispatched.

On to Mexico!

Attorneys for delinquents have advanced a great many reasons why Greene county coal in the hill should not be sold for taxes but candor compels the admission that the reasons seem rather technical. The chief reason for the non-payment of these taxes is a painful lack of preparedness on the part of the owners of the coal. This is, however, a good excuse for delay, and exoneration is not asked.

Uniontown will give an exhibition, on next Saturday, of that popular Pennsylvania movie, "State Wide Good Roads Day." Everybody is invited to become an actor.

The Pennsylvania Public Service Commission will be asked to approve the raising of the Dawson bridge in order to avoid the grade crossing at Dickerson Run. Everybody else approves it. It only remains for the commission to make it unanimous.

The Wilson administration has mollified in Europe and muddled in Mexico.

The primary election is scheduled for next week and few Republicans know anything about the candidates who are running outside of this district, and here there are no contests and hence no interest. There is little interest outside of Fayette county except what Governor Brumbaugh has created by his insatiable ambition.

Congressman Keister has slipped home to look after his fences. Perhaps he should have come sooner. Colonel Robbins admits having spent $2,000 campaigning against him for the nomination, and even at present prices that buys a lot of gasoline.

The preparedness of the Tenth regiment promises to get the whole Pennsylvania militia into the Mexican picnic. The Tenth is only a country regiment, too.

The Scottdale police share in the common prosperity.

The Democrats are having a lively fight at their primary election. It's a renewal of the struggle between the Old Guard and the Barefoot Boys for control of the organization. The latter are backed by the Wilson administration whose battle they are fighting.

The Barefoot organs of Fayette county are drilling the Democratic contingent in the art of voting the Barefoot ticket.

The Democratic organs of Fayette county are frankly factional.

The Barefoot organs of Fayette county are telling their readers that a vote for Mike Liebel is a vote for Jim Guffey and John Garman and Boies Penrose. The story is rather out of date, but to some people the jack o' lantern is a joy forever.

Villa may be dead, buried and resurrected, but his soul goes marching on.

The industrial unrest in the Pittsburg district seems to be subsiding, but the political unrest is just beginning.

The Retort Courteous

The Johnstown Democrat avers that its worthy editor, Congressman Warren Worth Bailey, has long stood for "reasonable preparedness."

Unreasoningly stood in its way, some of its militant advocates would assert.

The Latrobe Advance finds that the story of the wooden wash-tub which at the end of sixty years is still serviceable gives rise to the thought as to whether or not any of the tubs now on the market will be in use sixty years hence.

Most people will be using bath tubs by that time.

The Beaver Times wisely observes that the American boy of today is just what social ideals, parental influence, environment have made him.

Good citizenship, like charity, begins at home.

The Morgantown Post-Chronicle notes that all the omens in West Virginia point to a sweeping Republican victory in the coming campaign.

And the omens are many and of much portent.

The Hen

By GEORGE FITCH,
Author of "At Good Old Siwash."

The hen is a small nervous biped which has solved the problem of being valuable to society without a brain and should, therefore, be a great rebuke to the thousands of young men who are content to roll their own cigarettes while father pays for them.

The hen is distinguished for her lack of sense. She is particularly lacking in common or garden sense. Whenever she gets into a garden she makes a perfect fool of herself. Born with a loud voice and no particular cerebral development back of it, she blunders through life from one peril to another. Ten thousand generations of hens have tried to figure out how to cross a road between the wheels of a vehicle, but not one of them has contributed anything but feathers toward the solution of the problem. There is nothing so appalling as the hen's lack of thought, unless possibly it is the sight of the larger female biped who deposits seven bundles on the ledge of a stamp window, burrows into a two-bushel handbag for a dime and then stamps five letters while twenty people wait behind her.

The hen begins life as a chick about the size of a quarter's worth of protected butter. At the age of three months she is a pullet and can be dismembered and fried in bread crumbs and bacon fat with magnificent results. At the age of six months she becomes pensive and unless closely watched will gather up an old door knob, a harness ring, and a bicycle bell and will set on them all winter with the laudable intent of becoming a mother. Nothing is stronger or more beautiful than the maternal instinct of the hen, and nothing is so detrimental to the cause of cheap living and fresh eggs for the masses.

The hen has no teeth and is compelled to swallow her food whole like a hurried business man. She eats bugs, worms, corn, garden seeds and gravel and welds them all into eggs which she lays cautiously in secluded places and then advertises the fact in a hoarse, enthusiastic voice. She lays these eggs at the rate of one a day when they are worth ten cents a dozen, and at the rate of one a month when they are selling for five cents apiece.

The egg is the triumph of the hen. When she lays eggs she ceases to become a nuisance and becomes a national asset, greater than the wheat field or the scion of aristocracy. Billions of ignorant hens with no future to look forward to and no past to be proud of are busy safeguarding the prosperity of America by laying eggs. This should be a precious thought to the humble and diffident citizen who does not go to the polls and cast a ballot for progress because his efforts will be so small. Let him lay it in the box while millions of other voters are doing the same and great will be the result.

PROGRESS! THE KIND WE HAVE HAD ENOUGH OF.

Uncle Sam: "I am going to cut loose from him and put a business-like engineer on the job."

Garden Planting Time

The warm sunshiny days suggest garden planting. Now is the time to prepare the garden and plant the seeds for your summer vegetables. One of the most important things in connection with a successful garden and profitable crop is the planting of reliable seeds—seeds that will grow, and grow true to name. The Union Supply Company stores sell only reliable seeds from one of the oldest and most reliable seed growers in the country. We have sold these seeds for years and know that they are reliable. Do not experiment with unreliable firms; you cannot tell good seeds by looking at them, besides it is not necessary to experiment. Our long years of experience enables us to know what is the best, and we sell nothing that we cannot guarantee to be satisfactory. You can find in every Union Supply Company store a full line of all kinds of vegetable seeds, flower seeds, cabbage plants, tomato plants, etc. —everything needed for the lawn or garden. Plant only reliable seeds sold by all Union Supply Company stores.

A store, like a man, is known by its works—so would we like to be judged by our record of the past 7 years. Each of those years stands as a mile-stone, marking the steady, upward progress of this business, from its modest beginning with limited space and capital to the present big establishment and having thousands upon thousands of dollars worth of merchandise.

We would be narrow indeed if we failed to acknowledge that, without the loyal support of our thousands of patrons, our best endeavors would have been wholly barren of success. We have won your confidence and business, by the lowness of our prices, the desirability of our goods, the perfection of our service and business methods in general, so

IRISH REVOLT STIRS ENGLAND

How Casement Planned to Land Arms For Rebels.

NOW IN TOWER OF LONDON

Arrest on Charge of Being a Traitor Did Not Come as Surprise, For He Had Always Shown Animosity Toward England—Climax of Remarkable Career.

The recent revolutionary uprisings in Ireland, while not altogether a surprise, have proved one of the most interesting developments of England's part in the European war.

The arrest of Sir Roger Casement on the charge of being a traitor caused little surprise, but the sensational manner in which it occurred stirred the entire world.

Sir Roger, under a military guard, is occupying the same apartment in the Tower of London in which Karl Lody, the German spy who was executed in the early part of the war, spent the night before his execution.

Lody was arrested in Killarney. On April 14, when it was stated that Sir Roger had been arrested in Germany, he was actually aboard a German submarine in Kiel harbor, which, in company with a harmless looking tramp steamer of comparatively small tonnage, flying the Dutch colors, set out upon the voyage which ended in west Ireland ten days later.

20,000 Rifles Aboard.

The tramp was a German vessel manned by twenty picked men of the German navy and commanded by a lieutenant, with a junior officer as second in command. Its cargo was not of the innocent character described by its forged manifest, but consisted of about 20,000 rifles, machine guns and ammunition hidden beneath a layer of goods which the manifest declared as the vessel's sole cargo.

The tramp steamship, with the submarine generally close by, crept through the Cattegat, up along the coast of Norway, always keeping within territorial waters. The journey was made at a leisurely pace. Both vessels struck north and west on a course which left the Orkney islands, the Shetland islands and even the Faroe islands, far to the south.

But a British patrol boat bustled up suddenly and demanded the reason for the presence of a peaceful Dutch trader so far north. The Germans pleaded the perils from mines and submarines in the English channel as an explanation and produced the ship's papers, all of which were in perfect order.

There was nothing warlike about the ship, and of course there was no sign of the convoying submarine, which submerged when the British patrol was sighted. Even the tramp's crew was not suspicious looking. Many spoke English, expressing sympathy for the allied cause and the hope that they would not meet a ruthless U boat.

The vessel was allowed to proceed. Once the British patrol boat had disappeared the tramp steamer's course was shaped southward, and before long north Ireland was sighted. Again the pace was leisurely. The "Dutchman" kept close to the coast.

Suddenly another British patrol boat appeared. A shot was fired across the tramp steamer's bows, and the peremptory signal "I am boarding you" was hoisted. Then the tramp was ordered to accompany the patrol. After some distance had been covered the patrol sent armed boats for the crew. The "Dutch" crew then confessed that they were German navy men. Their ship, which they had just scuttled, was a small auxiliary of the Kaiser's fleet, intent upon running guns to Ireland.

A boat which did not belong to the sunken vessel also was found. It was a collapsible of the pattern carried by German submarines. In it were two men, one of whom admitted that he was Sir Roger Casement. He and his companion, two officers and twenty men of the crew of the auxiliary were made prisoners.

Sir Roger was promptly landed and sent to London. The others were treated as ordinary prisoners of war.

Climax of a Remarkable Career.

This latest and perhaps final adventure of Sir Roger Casement is an amazing climax of the persistent efforts of this Irishman since the war began against the country which he had served as consul and consul general for eighteen years and which had honored him with knighthood.

Previous to the opening of the great conflict in Europe Sir Roger was known to the world at large only through a report which he made in 1912, while consul general at Rio Janeiro, on the atrocities committed on natives by employees of a British company operating in the Putumayo rubber fields. As a result of his report a British royal commission, headed by him, investigated the situation and brought about reforms in the treatment of men employed in the industry.

Sir Roger was in America when the European war began in August, 1914. While here he addressed on Sept. 17 an open letter to the Irish press, in which he advised Irishmen to remain neutral, while he would see to it that the country did not suffer the fate of Belgium.

TIRES OF A MOTORCAR.

Why They Are Found Heated After a Long and Fast Run.

It is well known that after a long and fast run the tires of an automobile are found to be very hot, and many have supposed this is the result of the friction of the tire on the road. The Scientific American says that such is not the case, at least as to the greater portion of the heat.

"The real cause of heating," says that magazine, "is the internal friction of the tire itself, for as the tire is being constantly deflected by contact with the road the various piles, or layers, which compose the tire do not act uniformly, and consequently there is more or less motion between them that results in friction and heat. The greater the change in shape in the tire as it contacts with the road the greater will be the friction.

"Of course the harder the tire is pumped the less will be the friction, but it is evident that, while a perfectly rigid tire would generate but little heat, it would fail in giving easy riding. So we must put up with some heating and consequent wear of the tire. The subject is one that is being successfully studied by the tiremaker."

Hanged the Clever Forger.

Of curious petitions against the death penalty being enforced one recalls the eighteenth century case of William Lyland, who was sentenced for forging a bill for £7,114 on the East India House. The forgery was a work of art. No less than thirty signatures were imitated, and at the trial not one of the victims could swear that the signature was not his own. However, with the help of the paper manufacturers Ryland's guilt was brought home. Then came the petition of his friends. So clever a man ought never to be hanged, they pleaded. His craftsmanship should save him. It gained him a respite. He was allowed to finish a fine engraving he had begun, but nothing more. Though the engraver was a favorite of George III., that king quite failed to see how a forgery could be excused on the ground that it was a clever forgery.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Don't Talk Too Much.

Recently a voluble salesman was trying to close a deal with a good customer. The salesman was doing all the talking, and the buyer was becoming not a little annoyed. Several times the customer started to speak, but the salesman would choke him off and start on another line of argument. Finally the manager saw what was up and suggested to the seller that he allow the buyer to say something. This the buyer did and quickly. He said that he had been trying for half an hour to tell the salesman that he would take the goods.—Farm Machinery.

WATERY BLISTERS ITCHED AND BURNED

Terribly on Ankles and Arms. Very Badly Inflamed and Swollen. Could Not Wear Shoes.

HEALED BY CUTICURA SOAP AND OINTMENT

"I had poison ivy on my ankles and arms which started with little watery blisters and it itched and burned terribly. Matter formed in the little blisters, and they would spread in a big patch like a boil. I scratched so that the blood would come, and it would be followed by terrible pain. The parts which were affected were very badly inflamed and swollen and my foot was so bad that I could not wear my shoes.

"I got a sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I bought more and I only needed one cake of Cuticura Soap together with the Ointment to heal the trouble." (Signed) John E. Smith, Center, Pa., Oct. 19, 1915.

CUTS OF MEAT.

It Is Necessary to Know Muscle Structure.

DIFFERENT PARTS NAMED.

Some Expert Help For Young Housewives Who Have Not Yet Learned How to Cook Cheap Meats In the Most Nourishing, Tempting Way.

It would seem that the last word had been said on cheaper cuts of meat. But the increase in the high cost of living makes the meat problem still as tough (no pun) as ever.

What are the much maligned and equally much praised cuts called "cheaper?" To know this we must know the architecture of the animal in question. First, the most tender pieces are the less exposed parts of the animal. Whatever portions are subjected to muscular exercise (thus the loin) are tougher because the muscles have been used more. This does not mean that there is not as much nourishment in tough muscles as in tender ones. The cheaper cuts have tougher fibers, and the whole problem is to prepare and soften the fibers and thus put them on a par with more tender parts. The muscles of the abdomen are also tender, but give a very coarse meat.

The structure of the muscle fiber must be studied in order to apply the best methods of cooking. Each fiber is like a thin section of orange, being surrounded with a firm tissue and containing juice within. If we cut the fiber across the juice will escape. If we heat the fiber in a high temperature we will harden it still more and prevent the escape of juices. If we cut it and soak it in water the juices again will escape. But if we pour scalding water or liquid on the fiber it will have much the same effect as heating it rapidly to a high point.

Now, the ideal in handling all cheaper cuts is first to harden the fiber either by pouring on boiling water or by heating it to a high degree in order to avoid the escape of the juices, and second, to cook it slowly so that the fiber will eventually be very soft, the juices dissolved and the flavor as much as possible retained. None of these meats should be covered at first with cold liquid or cooked slowly before the outside fiber is seared.

What are some of these cuts by name? Perhaps this partial list will give suggestions which your butcher can help you carry out:

Cheaper cuts of beef:

Rump.—Roasts, braising, a la mode, stewing.

Chuck Ribs (1 and 2).—Roast, steak.

Chuck Ribs (last 3).—Stewing, braising.

"Plate."—Soup, stew, rolled pieces.

Brisket.—Corned and pot roast.

"Skirt" Steak.—Rolled, stew.

Flank Steak. — Rolled, stew, a la mode, soup.

Cross Ribs.—Pot roast.

Short Ribs.—Soup, stew, sliced cold.

Cheaper cuts of mutton:

Breast.—Stew, braising, soup.

Neck — Soup, stew, meat for croquettes, etc.

Veal:

Breast.—Soup, stew, made dishes, veal loaf.

A slow oven, which is also used in cooking other foods, can be used, or, above all, the "fireless cooker," which cooks without heat. Here, too, the fireproof or earthenware dishes can be used to best advantage, for then the food may be cooked and served in the same dish.

To Be Well Groomed.

The woman who is particular about her home is not always the best dressed, and it often happens that a woman whose home is unduly looks stunning in her street clothes. The points in dress that most women overlook are ruffings, footwear, gloves, hats and handkerchiefs.

Be sure that your glove is properly proportioned, and when you decide on a well fitting style buy no other. Dust a little powder into your glove before you wear it, and smooth all the seams straight. Have the lines on the backs properly over the center of the hands and the fingers in the tips of the glove.

Keep your hats in their boxes until you wish to use them, and return them at once when you take them off. Always brush them, especially if they are made of black velvet or a dark material that shows the dust. Never carry a soiled or even crumpled handkerchief. It is only a little thing, but it is the little things that help toward complete beauty.

Fillet of Bass, General Joffre.

Remove the fillets from a good sized bass, place in a well buttered saucepan and add some minced shallots and minced fresh mushrooms; poach in white wine. When done place them on a plate and thicken the sauce with some kneaded good butter, so that it will remain light. Season with salt, pepper and minced chives. Garnish with small bouquets of shrimps.

NEW WINDOW TREATMENT.

Suggestions For Renewing Your Curtains After Housecleaning.

New window treatment gives opportunity to make the most of cretonne—that most charming drapery stuff for summer rooms. There are long side curtains from rod to sill, made of flowered cretonne lined with tinted sateen in the usual manner. These hang from a brass rod, which, instead of going straight across the window, bulges up in a curve at the center, where the valance is shirred over it. This valance is very full and is in two portions, each section six inches deep at the center of the window and ten inches deep at the outer side, where it meets the side curtain. Cords are run through the lower edges of the section and left unfastened, to be pulled up when the valance is adjusted.

When curtains and valance have been shifted to the pole and the pole set in place over the window, the outer lower corners of the valance are tacked to the side curtains under rosettes of the cretonne. The edges at the center, where the valance is divided and is only six inches deep, are tacked together. Next the cords are drawn up toward the center, tied and tucked out of sight. This draws up the sloping edges of the valance in puckered effect, and the drawn up valance brings forward the side curtain at the point of the rosette. The whole effect is dainty and graceful and suggestive of a French boudoir. Shades of the cretonne instead of ordinary window shades will complete a charming window treatment.

For the Chinese room or any other room where black and white is desirable for background effects, there is a new window curtain material of woven black and white checks in very open effect, like coarse net. Graduated black stripes in clusters cross the fabric, and smart looking curtains are arranged so that the black striping comes directly across valance and side curtains about six inches from the top of the window.

Got His Reply.

A funny man indulged in a practical joke recently. He put an advertisement in a paper for a wife and requested each candidate to inclose her carte de visite. It was a foolish thing to do, but one of the candidates served him out very well by sending the following letter: "Sir, I do not inclose my carte, for, though there is some authority for putting a cart before a horse, I know of none for putting one before an ass."

Outrageous.

SPORTS AS THE EXPERTS SEE THEM

Wrestling Game Is Being Revived

"WHAT has happened to the old wrestling game?" "Why the revived interest?"

This is a question baseball and football fans are asking. It is one that might well be asked considering the revival of the sport in cities all over America.

Following are six reasons for revival of the mat game:

Joe Stecher.—The appearance of this wonderful grappler, who hasn't been pinned for a single fall in a public match in three years, insures the honesty of all his bouts.

Frank Gotch.—The comeback of the world's champion has helped stimulate interest in the sport in every nook and corner of the land. Every fan feels that the champion is a square grappler and has always so considered him.

Earl Caddock.—Greatest heavyweight wrestler ever developed from the ranks of the amateurs. Weighs 195 pounds and has not been defeated by a man of his weight since turning professional. Inasmuch as he is managed by Gene Melady, the fans may be assured that all his struggles on the mat will be contested on the level. Martin Delaney, who helped develop Caddock, pronounces him one of the cleanest, squarest athletes ever turned out from the ranks of the amateurs.

Waino Ketonen.—Wonderful wrestler from Finland, holder of the middleweight championship. Ketonen doesn't care how tough his opponents are or what their reputations for ability on the mat. He will tackle them all and take a chance on winning. His only defeat in America was at the hands of Mike Yokel. Ketonen later won the championship in a sensational match.

Emil Klank pronounces Ketonen the best proportioned middleweight wrestler the game has ever produced. He predicts this wrestler will hold the title for many years.

Johnny Meyers.—Sensational welterweight wrestler. Has lost only one fall in 468 matches. This fall was gained by Ben Reuben recently at the Coliseum in Chicago. Meyers has steadily developed until he is feared and dodged by alleged champions in all parts of the United States. Any wrestler who defeats this lad who hails from Sheboygan, Wis., will have to go at his best and win on his merits. Meyers is out to win every match. He has become one of the big drawing cards of the game.

Johnny Billiter.—Lightweight champion, whose home is at Toledo. A wonderful grappler at his weight and generally pronounced the best gladiator of the mat in the world at 130 pounds. Billiter's eagerness to hold his title and his ability to win with Gotch's toe hold insures the squareness of all the matches in which he contests.

To these must be added Ben Reuben, Joe Smith, Anton Stecher and other square grapplers who have brought in their influence to boost the mat game.

The appearance of new mat promoters and managers trying to build up the game is also a big factor in boosting the wrestling game. Gene Melady, the Omaha promoter, is packing the largest buildings in that city and Council Bluffs, across the river, every time he stages bouts. Melady has placed a premium upon squareness by a clause that takes away the receipts and gives them to charity if any crookedness is detected.

Arbiter Decides Batter Is Entitled To Half Run

RUBE MARSHALL, who would be billed in vaudeville as an eccentric comedian, but who is now endeavoring to earn money by the more serious method of pitching winning ball for the Tigers, is chock full of stories.

One of his latest has to do with a ball game in which the umpire was forced to render a decision that rivaled the judgment of Solomon.

"Two teams were playing a ball game down in Kentucky," says Marshall, "and they came up to the last half of the ninth inning with the score tied, each having made two runs. With two men out, the hitter broke the only bat in the park on a foul ball, and they had to go out and get an ax handle to substitute for the ash. On the next pitch the leading slugger of the town hit the pill right on the nose with the emergency bat. He happened to have the sharp edge turned toward the globule, and he split it right square in two.

"One half went over the fence and the other dropped inside the park. The demon larruper made the circuit of the bases, and his comrades claimed that the winning run had scored. Naturally the other side put up a roar and the umpire stood a good chance of getting mobbed, no matter which way he decided. As there were plenty of weapons in plain sight, it behooved him to think carefully before he ruled.

"After pondering over the matter for some time, while the fans began to unpack their artillery and get ready to go into action, the judge of play rendered the verdict that the home club had won by a score of 2½ to 2, giving the batter half a run for knocking the fragment of ball over the fence. The visitors couldn't find anything in the rule book to offer in rebuttal, and they had to accept this decision, so both sides repaired to a convenient still and conducted themselves as Kentucky gentlemen usually do in their moments of social relaxation. I claim that Mr. Umpire used his head in a pinch and that Carnegie ought to give him a hero medal for saving his own life."

KAUFF GREATEST PLAYER EVER— JOE TINKER

BENNIE KAUFF, formerly of the late Federal league and now with the Giants, has been heard to say on numerous occasions that Bennie Kauff was, is and always would be the greatest ball player in the world.

For which expressed hatred of himself Benjamin has been put down as a very swell headed guy.

But the most egotistical of Ben's confessions are completely snowed under by compliments which Joe Tinker, another member of the late Federal league, pays to the new Giant outfielder.

BENNY KAUFF.

"Bennie Kauff is as far ahead of Ty Cobb or any other ball player as Cobb has been ahead of his rivals all these years," said Manager Tinker, as he left the diamond recently after seeing his Cubs take a beating from Cleveland.

"He hasn't overrated himself a bit. He can hit a ball just as far as he wants and is a great all around player. He will be the sensation of baseball from now on, take my tip."

TEN SECOND MEN IN BASEBALL.

ONE often hears of "ten second" men in baseball, but it is doubtful if there is a sprinter in the game who can make a hundred yards in that time. At the camp of the Reds in Shreveport recently a mile race was put on. Wade Killifer ran the distance around the Shreveport track in his baseball uniform in 6 minutes 26 seconds, a pace that probably could be beaten by a lot of well developed office boys.

LONG SEASON FOR THE COAST LEAGUE.

THE Pacific Coast league baseball season began on April 4 and will end Oct. 29.

Ball Players More Mannerly Now

Old time fans always will give one an argument as to whether baseball is any faster now than it was in the palmy days of "Pop" Anson and "King" Kelly.

The silver temple brigade finds it mighty hard to admit that Ty Cobb has anything on some of the stars of yesteryear and that Walter Johnson is harder to hit than Amos Rusie was before Amos tried to strike out John Barleycorn every evening after the game. But there is one point on which the veteran patrons and players concede something to the present generation. They admit that baseball manners off the field are better now than they were once.

There used to be a time when managers of first class hotels would have welcomed a proposition to house big league ball clubs just as much as they would have rejoiced in the chance to entertain a flock of plague patients. The very idea filled them with horror, for the players were likely to do almost anything, except burn the house down.

All of the old time ball players were not toughs. In fact, the large majority behaved as well as anybody could ask. But there was a fair percentage of fellows who never were intended for polite society. The "bad actors" were allowed about all the rope they cared to take, too, for the better element figured that every man's conduct was his own business.

Nowadays rowdyism off the field has virtually been eliminated. Now and then some individual kicks over the traces, but the spirit of the managers and clubs is against anything smacking of "rough stuff," and those who want to cut up seek some place where their boss and their comrades will not find them.

So at present the hotels of the best grade, instead of calling for the police when a major league club tries to register, hang out the welcome sign. Lew Tuller, owner of a leading Detroit hotel, is one landlord who doesn't care how many ball clubs stop at his house. He had the White Sox as guests all last season and says that a better behaved body could not be recruited anywhere in the world.

"Prejudices against ball clubs are dying fast among hotel proprietors," said Mr. Tuller recently. "In fact, it is just about dead now. The members of the Chicago club, whom I entertained last year, compare favorably in deportment with anybody who comes here. In fact, you never would knew that there was a baseball aggregation in the hotel, so quiet are the men. Lots of my guests never learn that they have been stopping under the same roof with Eddie Collins and Joe Jackson except by accident.

"There is no class of patronage that I rather would have than that of big league players, and just as many clubs can come here as we have room for."

Ty Cobb Out For Pilfering Record

TY COBB, the great Detroit outfielder, says he will attempt to establish a new record for base stealing this season.

How Sinclair Got Rid of His Players

HOW it was that Harry F. Sinclair obtained control of about thirty of the best players of the Federal league and was permitted to sell them to the highest bidders and pocket the proceeds is answered by one who knows in this way:

Sinclair purchased Lee Magee, Benny Kauff and several stars and others from the Brooklyn club late last summer for the purpose of putting them in the lineup of the team which the Feds planned to put into New York and which Sinclair was to back. When the Feds were eliminated from the baseball world Sinclair no longer had any place to play those Brookfed stars, and he did the only natural thing, sold them. Sinclair took the other players from the Kansas City, Buffalo and other clubs in payment for the money which he had loaned to those clubs during the season of 1915. Sinclair has kept silent as to how he actually came into ownership of those players, merely because he saw no reason to make known that some of the clubs were in such shape that he had to loan them money out of his private account.

When peace was made in baseball it was found that Sinclair was about $200,000 in the hole through advance of cash to clubs in the league. Sinclair was willing to wipe clean the slate and charge the $200,000 to a recreation account, but the Sinclair debtors insisted that he take the pick of the players, pointing out that in selling them he could reimburse himself.

PIG IRON OUTPUT FELL OFF IN APRIL OVER 100,000 TONS

Compared With March But Gained Slightly in Daily Average.

NON-MERCHANTS THE LOSERS

Furnaces Blown Out for Repairs Are Offset by Lighting New Stacks; The Number Now in Blast, 321, is the Highest Record Since September, '07.

The blast furnaces of the country produced 3,225,496 tons of coke and anthracite pig iron in the month of April, a loss of 102,134 tons, compared with the 3,327,630 tons produced in March. However, a gain is shown in the average daily production in April, this being 107,517 tons, compared with 107,343 tons in March. Thus the total tonnage in April fell below that of March as the high point on the present movement, but the April daily average is the highest ever recorded, says The Daily Iron Trade. The blowing in of new stacks the past month appears to have offset any reduction in total output because of stacks blowing out for relining after having endured the past tremendous production gait.

The steel works or non-merchant furnaces were entirely responsible for this gain, as the average daily output of the merchant furnaces declined during the month. The production of non-merchant iron in April was 2,346,806 tons against 2,408,759 tons in March, a loss of 61,953 tons. The steel works furnaces averaged daily during April 78,227 tons against 77,702 tons in March, a gain of 525 tons. The total production of merchant iron in April was 844,184 tons, compared with 887,454 tons in March, a loss of 43,270 tons. The merchant furnaces averaged daily during April 28,139 tons against 28,628 tons in March, a loss of 480 tons.

The number of stacks active on April 30 was 321, the highest record set since September 30, 1907. The net gain in active furnaces in April was six, of which four were merchant furnaces and two non-merchant furnaces. Six merchant stacks were blown in and two blown out. Four non-merchant furnaces were relighted and two blown out.

The production of ferro in April was 22,744 tons against 18,752 tons in March, a gain of 3,992 tons. The output of spiegel in April was 11,762 tons against 12,665 tons in March, a loss of 903 tons.

Wayne furnace of the Detroit Furnace Company, which has been under repair for several months, will be blown in this month. The Low Moor Iron Company will shortly blow in its third furnace to take the place of one to be blown out for repairs.

"It's not a belief, it's a disease," declared the fat man. "I was born to be a gambler, but the business is too uncertain. Now that I'm getting so old and feeble I can't work any more, I'd take it up, only I broke three fingers, and when I try to deal I drop the cards. What are we going to do?"

"Just wait," said O'Neil.

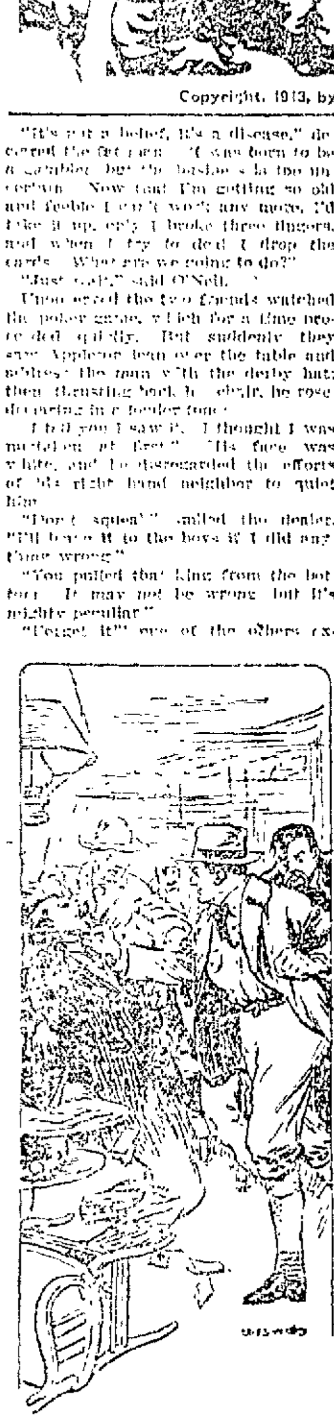

Unobserved the two friends watched the poker game, which for a time proceeded quietly. But suddenly they saw Appleton lean over the table and address the man with the derby hat; then thrusting back his chair, he rose, declaring in a louder tone:

"I tell you I saw it. I thought I was mistaken at first." His face was white, and he disregarded the efforts of his right hand neighbor to quiet him.

"Don't squeal!" smiled the dealer. "I'll leave it to the boys if I did anything wrong."

"You pulled that king from the bottom. It may not be wrong, but it's mighty peculiar."

"Forget it!" one of the others exclaimed. "Denny wouldn't double cross you."

Murray's Fist Met Him as He Rose.

"Hardly," agreed Mr. Denny evenly. "You're 'in' $180, but if you're sore you can have it back."

Appleton flung his cards into the middle of the table and turned away disgustedly. "It's a hard thing to prove, and I'm not absolutely sure I saw straight or I'd take it back fast enough."

Denny shrugged and gathered in the discarded hand. "You've been drinking too much, that's all. Your eyesight is scattered."

Appleton's face flushed as he beheld the gaze of the company upon him and heard the laughter which greeted this remark. He turned to leave when O'Neil, who had continued to watch the proceedings with interest, crossed to the group and touched Denny on the shoulder, saying quietly:

"Give him his money."

"Eh?" The smile faded from the fellow's face. He looked up with startled inquiry. "What?"

"Give him his money."

In the momentary hush which followed Happy Tom Slater, who had frequently seen his employer in action and understood storm signals, sighed deeply and reached for the nearest chair. With a wrench of his powerful hands he loosened a leg. Although Mr. Slater abhorred trouble, he was [illegible] to meet it philosophically. A lifetime spent in construction camps had taught him that of all weapons the one best suited to his use was a pick handle. Second to that he had come to value the hardwood leg of a chair. But in the present case his precaution proved needless, for the dispute was over before he had fairly loosened himself.

Without waiting for O'Neil to put his [illegible] words Denny had [illegible], and as [illegible] so he had [illegible] made [illegible] which produced a prompt [illegible] Murray's fist [illegible] square [illegible] that he lost all [illegible] followed. "Sit down," said O'Neil. "He won't pull himself together for awhile, and I want to get to bed. Are you looking for a job?"

The engineer's eyes opened wide.

"Yes."

"Do you know the Kyak country?"

"Pretty well."

"I need a surveyor. Your wages will be the same that Gordon paid, and they begin now, if it's agreeable."

"It certainly is."

"Good! We'll leave at 6 o'clock sharp. Bring your bedding and instruments."

"Thanks! I— This is a bit of a surprise. Who are you?"

"I'm O'Neil."

"Oh!" Mr. Appleton's expression changed quickly. "You're Murray"— He stammered an instant. "It was very good of you to take my part after I'd been fool enough to"—

"Well, I didn't want to see you make a total idiot of yourself."

The young man flushed slightly; then in a quieter voice he asked:

"How did you know I was out of work?"

"Mr. Gordon told me. He recommended you highly."

"He did?"

"He said you were unreliable, disloyal and dishonest. Coming from him, I took that as high praise."

There was a moment's pause; then Appleton laughed boyishly.

"That's funny. I'm very glad to know you, Mr. O'Neil."

"You don't, and you won't for a long time. Tom tells me you didn't think well of Gordon's enterprise and so he fired you."

"That's right. I suppose I ought to have kept my mouth shut, but it has a way of flying open when it shouldn't. He's either a fool or a crook, and his line is nothing but a prospect. I couldn't resist telling him so."

"And his railroad?"

Appleton hesitated. "Oh, it's as good a route as the trust's. I worked on the two surveys. Personally I think both outfits are crazy to try to build in from here. I had to tell Gordon that too. You see, I'm a volunteer talker. I should have been born with a stutter. It would have saved me a lot of trouble."

CHAPTER VI.

In a Wild Country.

LATE on the following morning O'Neil's expedition was landed at the deserted fishing station of Omar, thirty miles down the sound from Cortez. From this point its route lay down the bay to open water and thence eastward along the coast in front of the Salmon river delta some forty miles to Kyak. This latter stretch would have been well nigh impossible for open boats but for the fact that the numerous mud bars and islands thrown out by the river afforded a sheltered course. These inside channels, though shallow, were of sufficient depth to allow small craft to navigate and had long been used as a route to the coal fields.

Appleton, smiling and cheerful, was the first member of the party to appear at the dock that morning, and when the landing had been effected at Omar he showed his knowledge of the country by suggesting a short cut which would save the long row down to the mouth of the sound and around into the delta. Immediately back of the old cannery, which occupied a gap in the mountain rim, lay a narrow lake, and this, he declared, held an outlet which led into the Salmon river flats. By hauling the boats over into this body of water—a task made easy by the presence of a tiny tramway with one dilapidated push car which had been a part of the cannery equipment—it would be possible to save much time and labor.

"I've heard there was a way through," O'Neil confessed, "but nobody seemed to know just where it was."

"I know," the young man assured him. "We can gain a day at least and I judge every day is valuable."

"So valuable that we can't afford to lose one by making a mistake," said his employer meaningly.

"Leave it to me. I never forget a country once I've been through it."

But Dan Appleton was not mistaken. A two hours' row across the mirror-like surface of Omar lake brought the party out through a hidden gap in the mountains and afforded them a view across the level delta. To their left the range they had just penetrated retreated toward the canyon where the Salmon river burst its way out from the interior, and beyond that point it continued in a coastward swing to Kyak, their destination. Between lay a flat, treeless tundra, cut by sloughs and glacial streams, with here and there long tongues of timber reaching down from the high ground and dwindling away toward the seaward marshes. It was a desolate region, the breeding place of sea fowl, the hunting ground for the great brown bear.

O'Neil had never before been so near the canyon as this, and the wild stories he had heard of it recurred to him with interest. He surveyed the place curiously as the boats glided along, but could see nothing more than a jumble of small hills and buttes and beyond them the dead gray backs of the twin glaciers coming down from the slopes to east and west. Beyond the foothills and the glaciers themselves the main range was gashed by a deep valley through which he judged the river must come, and beyond that he knew was a country of agricultural promise, extending clear to the fabulous copper belt, whither the railroads from Cortez were headed. Still farther inland lay the Tanana, and then the Yukon, with their riches untouched.

What a pity, what a mockery, it was that this obvious entrance to the country had been blocked by nature! Just at his back was Omar, with its deep and sheltered harbor; the lake he had crossed gave a passage through the guardian range, and this tundra—O'Neil estimated that he could lay a mile of track a day over it—led right up to the glaciers. Once through the coast range building would be easy, for the upper Salmon was navigable, and its banks presented no difficulties to track laying.

He turned abruptly to Appleton, who was pulling an oar.

"What do you know about that canyon?" he asked.

"Not much. Nobody knows much, for those fellows who went through in the gold rush have all left the country. Gordon's right of way comes in above, and so does the trust's. From there on I know every foot of the ground."

Camp was pitched late that night far out on the flats. During the preparation of supper Murray sat staring fixedly before him, deaf to all sounds and insensible to the activities of his companions. He had lost his customary breeziness and his good nature. He was curt, saturnine, unsmiling. Appleton undertook to arouse him from this abstraction, but Slater drew the young man aside hurriedly with a warning:

"Don't do that, son, or you'll wear splints for the rest of the trip."

"What's the matter with him, anyhow?" Dan inquired. "He was boiling over with enthusiasm all day, but now—why, he's asleep sitting up! He hasn't moved for twenty minutes."

Tom shook his head, dislodging a swarm of mosquitoes.

"Walk on your toes, my boy. Walk on your toes. I smell something cooking, and it ain't supper."

When food was served O'Neil made a pretense of eating, but rose suddenly in the midst of it with the words

"I'll stretch my legs a bit." His voice was strangely listless. In his eyes was the same abstraction which had troubled Appleton during the afternoon. He left the camp and disappeared up the bank of the stream.

"Nice place to take a walk!" the engineer observed. "He'll bog down in half a mile or get lost among the sloughs."

Darkness had settled when O'Neil reappeared. He came plunging out of the brush, drenched, muddy, stained by contact with the thickets, but his former mood had disappeared, and in its place was a harsh, explosive energy.

"Tom," he cried, "you and Appleton and I will leave at daylight. The men will wait here until we get back." His voice was incisive. Its tone forbade question.

The youthful engineer stared at him in dismay, for only his anxiety had triumphed over his fatigue, and daylight was but four hours away. O'Neil noted the expression and said more gently:

"You're tired, Appleton, I know, but in working for me you'll be called upon for extraordinary effort now and then. I may not demand more than an extra hour from you; then again I may demand a week straight without sleep. I'll never ask it unless it's necessary and unless I'm ready to do my share."

"Yes, sir."

"The sacrifice is big, but the pay is bigger. Loyalty is all I require."

"I'm ready now, sir."

"We can't see to travel before dawn. Help Tom load the lightest boat with rations for five days. If we run short we'll 'skwash' it." He kicked off his rubber boots, upended them to drain the water out, then flung himself upon his bed of boughs and was asleep almost before the two had recovered from their surprise.

"Five days or longer!" Slater said gloomily as he and Dan began their preparations. "And me with indigestion!"

"What does it mean?" queried Appleton.

"It means I'll probably succumb."

"No, no! What's the meaning of this change of plan? I can't understand it."

"You don't need to," Happy Tom informed him curtly. There was a look of solicitude in his face as he added, "I wish I'd made him take off his wet clothes before he went to sleep."

"Let's wake him up."

But Slater shook his head. "I'd sooner wake a rattlesnake," said he.

O'Neil roused the members of his expedition while the sky was reddening faintly, for he had a mind which worked like an alarm clock. All except Appleton had worked for him before, and the men accepted his orders to await his return with no appearance of surprise.

With the first clear light he and his two companions set out, rowing up the estuary of the Salmon until the current became too swift to stem in that manner. Then landing, they rigged a "bridle" for the skiff, fitted their shoulders to loops in a ninety foot tow rope and began to "track" their craft up against the stream. It was heart-breaking work. Frequently they were waist deep in the cold water. Long "sweepers" with tips awash in the flood interfered with their efforts. The many branches of the stream forced them to make repeated crossings, for the delta was no more than an endless series of islands through which the current swirled. When dusk overtook them they were wet, weary and weak from hunger. With the dawn they were up and at it again, but their task became constantly more difficult because of the floating glacier ice, which increased with every mile. They were obliged to exercise the extremest caution. Hour after hour they strained against the current until the ropes bit into their aching flesh, bringing raw places out on neck and palm. Hour after hour the ice went churning past, and through it all came the intermittent echo of the caving glaciers ahead of them.

Lajoie May Quit In Year.

While no one can venture to predict when Hans Wagner will play his last ball game it is a pretty good guess that Nap Lajoie will retire after the coming season, for his $9,000 contract will expire at the end of the 1916 campaign, and he will not be likely to accept a cut or take the management of some minor league club.

Tooth Loose? Watch out for Pyorrhea!

See your dentist twice yearly. Use Senreco twice daily.

When you find a tooth that gives back and forth, even just a little, see your dentist at once.

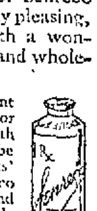

He will find conditions which you might overlook. He will find a gum recession, even though slight, where the gums have pulled away from the teeth. And he will tell you that you have the dread disease pyorrhea.

From pyorrhea come by far the greater part of all tooth troubles. Unless treated and checked, it will result not only in the shrinking and malformation of your gums and of the bony structure into which your teeth are set, but in the loss of the teeth themselves.

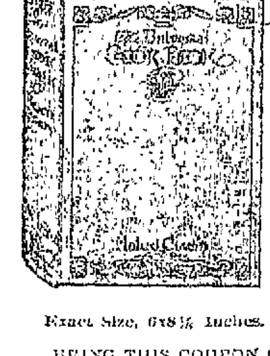

A specific for pyorrhea has been discovered recently by dental science, and is now offered for daily treatment in Senreco Tooth Paste. Senreco combats the germ of the disease. Its regular use insures your teeth against the attack or further progress of pyorrhea.

But Senreco does more. It cleanses the teeth delightfully. It gives them a whiteness distinctive of Senreco alone. Its flavor is entirely pleasing, and it leaves in the mouth a wonderful sense of coolness and wholesomeness.

Start the Senreco treatment before pyorrhea grips you for good. Details in folder with every tube. A two-ounce tube for 25c is sufficient for 6 weeks' daily treatment. Get Senreco of your druggist today; or send 4c in stamps or coin for sample tube and folder. Address The Sentanel Remedies Company 503 Union Central Building, Cincinnati, Ohio.

DANGER PERIOD OF GREAT RACE FOR SAXON "SIX" AND OTHER BIG COURIER PRIZES NOW AT HAND.

Booster Period, the Final Extra Vote Offer, Ends Next Wednesday. Nothing Doing on Extra Votes After May 17. Get All Your Promised Subscriptions in by Then.

Next Wednesday, May 17, will be the end of Booster Period the final extra vote offer in The Courier contest.

The next few days may well be called the danger lap, for a misstep on your part may cause you to lose all the benefit you have gained so far in the race.

The slippery places in the track for workers are clearly marked. They are first and foremost, delay; then, credulity; lack of confidence and lack of energy.

Of these the most dangerous is delay, because while you are waiting, some other subscriber whom you might have interested is giving his subscription to your rival.

The second slippery spot is credulity. It is as bad as an infectious disease, and cripples you as effectually as a stroke of paralysis. If you believe all you hear of the marvelous gains that others have made, it takes the heart out of you, and what you do without a heart into it, is worth little.

Could you sit in the contest department for one day, you would laugh at the many fears exhibited. Fear founded, be it understood, on the "very best authority."

Candidate B comes in to say she has been doing very well and would be satisfied if she did not know what a tremendous backing Candidate A had. "There she comes now," she exclaims as she beats a hasty retreat. Candidate A seats herself and remarks: "But for that candidate who has just left, I might have half a chance, but what can I do against such backing as she has?"

Another is certain he can do well, but cannot hope to reach the mark which his is "positively assured" his rival has.

So it goes. Were half the tales we hear true, The Courier would have a list of subscribers as long as Cook's trip to the pole. We would be millionaires, and we would be giving an auto to every candidate who turns in $25 instead of limiting it to the one who polls the highest number of votes.

DON'T FALL DOWN.—The most evincing spot on which you may fall down on in this danger lap is lack of energy.

If you fall down here you cannot expect sympathy from anyone. It will be entirely your own fault, and we cannot feel sorry for you.

You'll be sorry for yourself though when you find that others have cleared this bad place in the road with one splendid leap which you could have made had you tightened your muscles for the spring and with a bound made straight for the goal.

LACK OF CONFIDENCE.—Here is another pitfall. Avoid it as you would a leaky rowboat. It will swamp you. To underestimate oneself is about as foolish, and really more dangerous than to feel too sure of achievement.

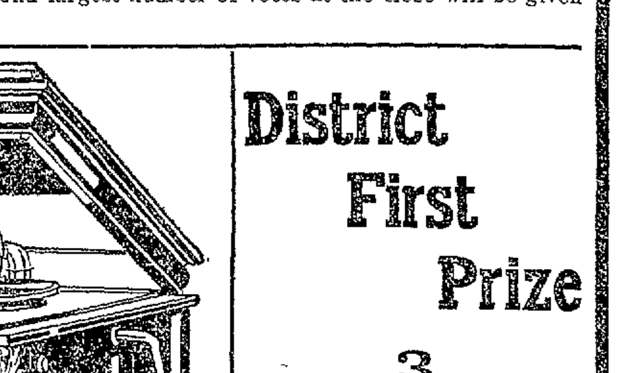

THE GOING IS GOOD.—If you keep these warnings in mind, and act upon them, then you will find that there is good going right up to the very end. You will come in with flying colors, and the sweets of victory will be assured.

Take advantage of the final extra vote offer and thereby round into the home stretch with plenty of votes.

Read The Daily Courier every day.

COAL PRODUCTION IN VIRGINIA INCREASED

In Tons But Decreased in Value During 1915, Activity Came Late in Year; Output Per Man.

The production of coal in Virginia in 1915 according to figures compiled by the United States Geological Survey was 8,1––,––– short tons valued at $7,6––,––1. This is an increase compared with 1914 of 161,061 tons or 2 per cent in quantity but a decrease of $––,511 or less than 1 per cent in value. With the exception of the banner year 1911 when the production was more than 8,400,000 tons, the output in 1915 was the highest recorded for Virginia. Wise county, the largest producer, showed a decrease of more than 100,000 tons, but all the other counties recorded increases.

During the early months of the year coal mining was inactive, but in August the demand for both coal and coke became stronger and by the end of the year the production was reported up to capacity and limited only by shortage of labor and cars.

There was a decrease in the number of men employed from 9,18– in 1914 to 8,––– in 1915, but the average number of days for each man, 235, was the same in both years. The average number of tons produced per man during the year was 907 compared with 867 in 1914 and the average output per man per day increased from 3.69 to 3.– tons. The proportion of coal mined by hand decreased from 18 to ––– per cent, but the proportion mined by machine increased from 31 to 63 per cent. The quantity of washed coal decreased from ––1,971 tons in 1914 to 178,525 tons in 1915.

SPOT FURNACE COKE HAS STIFFENED; NO OFFERINGS AT LESS THAN $2.25

Somewhat Firmer Tone With Quotable Range $2.25 to $2.40.

CURTAILMENT PLAN IS FAVORED

To Regulate Production to Meet Shipping Requirements and Thus Avoid Accumulations of Stock; Little Interest in Foundry; Pig Iron Dull.

Special to The Weekly Courier.

PITTSBURG, May 10.—The advance in coke workers' wages, announced last Saturday by the H. C. Frick Coke Company, furnished a surprise to some operators who felt that with the productive ability of the coke region somewhat beyond the consumptive requirements as expressed by the blast furnaces there was no particular occasion to advance wages. The advance seems to be met, however, in all quarters. Inasmuch as some coke operators have been predicting a severe shortage of labor in the coke region later in the season, while even now there is eager bidding for men in the steel industry proper and in many other industries, the coke wage advance may easily be regarded as well timed.

The recently inaugurated curtailment in merchant coke output appears to be gaining in force, on the principle that the merchant ovens should regulate their production strictly in accordance with the shipping requirements of their contracts and avoid having any surplus coke that would have to be dumped on the market. The coke region is evidently equipped to make more coke than is now being produced.

The market for furnace coke for spot shipment has stiffened somewhat in the past week. Reports are no longer heard of coke being offered at less than $2.25, even if not of standard grade, while one or two sales of coke of only fair grade are reported at about $2.35, and it appears that even $2.40 might sometimes have to be paid. On the other hand there are odd lots available more often than not at $2.25, and the market for spot furnace coke is quotable at $2.25 to $2.40. This is the same range as reported a week ago, but the market may be described as firmer now at that range.

A large contract for furnace coke for second half is reported, this being 5,000 tons a month at $2.50, a price that has been done a couple of times before for second half, although there have also been sales at $3.00. The contract market is extremely quiet, as a matter of fact, prospective buyers showing no anxiety whatever to get under cover. Operators are quite unwilling to try to force sales, and thus the contract furnace coke market is practically at a standstill.

The market for foundry coke for spot shipment has been quite tardy in reflecting any change by reason of the decline in prompt furnace coke that occurred a few weeks ago, but in the past week there has been a decline of about 25 cents. It is to be noted that foundry coke did not advance as sharply as furnace coke. In February there was a record sale of spot furnace coke at $5.00, but foundry coke does not seem to have sold above about $4.25, and there was indeed very little sold above $4.00. For some time that was the ruling quotation the market afterwards dropping to $3.75, while in the past week it has become quotable at $3.50 to $3.75. Very little interest is shown in foundry coke on contract. The bulk of the contracting has already been done, and consumers who are not already under contract are taking their time. Conditions in the foundries and machine trade are far from satisfactory from the standpoint of assurance of operations. The foundries in the Pittsburg district have had a strike of moulders on their hands since December 13, while this month strikes of machinists started in various districts and fears are entertained the trouble will grow. The market is now quotable as follows:

Spot furnace	$2.25@$2.40
Contract furnace	$2.50@$3.00
Spot foundry	$3.50@$3.75
Contract foundry	$3.50

The local pig iron market has been exercised, dull the past ten days, duller than at any time for months. There has been an almost complete absence of inquiry, either from steel works or from foundries. The latter are having trouble with their men, as just noted, while the steel works seem to be getting along nicely. They are producing an unusually large proportion of scrap, on account of mixed orders for war steel, which require heavy cropping of both ingot and billet, and this helps out against the pig iron requirements. It appears also that the steel works are behind schedule time in building additions, which promised to require larger supplies of pig iron. The pig iron market is quotable firm if not active, as follows:

Bessemer	$21.50@$21.50
Basic	$18.25@$18.50
No. 2 foundry	$18.50@$19.00
No. 3 do	$18.50@$19.00
No. 4 do	$18.00@$18.50

These prices are f. o. b. Valley furnace, prices delivered Pittsburg being 50c higher by the 95-cent freight.

Immigration Increasing.

The immigration statistics for March show a decided increase in the number of persons entering the country, both aliens and citizens. The net increase in the month in March, due to persons coming to the country, in excess of those leaving, is 27,789, against 28,729 in the whole eight months previous.

To Build New Town.

Information comes from Youngstown, Ohio, that the Carnegie Steel Company has acquired land in the vicinity of its $7,000,000 bar mill for the purpose of building a model town. The tract contains about 700 acres.

COKE TRADE SUMMARY.

Between the upper and the nether millstones of inefficient production and lack of efficient consumption the Connellsville coke trade is being ground down to the fine point of 400,000 tons weekly. Production and output last week were 410,000 tons with 89% of the ovens in operation working 86% capacity. Easter holiday conditions reduced production from 449,000 tons to less than 407,000 tons, and conditions since have conspired to hold it there. Some furnaces are working off surplus coke and others are out for repairs thus cutting down merchant demand. This week a scarcity of cars has developed which threatens to keep shipments down in spite of an advance in wages of 5c; evidently intended to stimulate the labor supply if not the labor efficiency to increased production. Shipments and production went hand in hand last week due to the fact that the merchant operators are averse to making stock coke and the furnace interest is desirous of getting it out promptly if cars are in sufficient supply.

There is a stiffening in price for spot furnace coke, no offerings being heard of at less than $2.25

STEEL MARKET MUST TAKE BACK SEAT TO LABOR

Demands for Shorter Hours, Rather Than Increased Earnings One That Cannot Well be Met.

Special to The Weekly Courier.

NEW YORK, May 10.—The American Metal Market and Daily Iron & Steel Report will review the steel and iron trade tomorrow as follows:

The iron and steel producing and consuming industries are honeycombed with labor troubles, some developed and others incipient. The question of labor is easily the paramount one in the trade, and the market must take a back seat. The business has been placed on books and the work is to fill the orders.

The essence of the labor unrest is not so much a desire for greater earnings as a disposition to strike for the sake of striking, or for shorter hours, and thus it is one the manufacturers cannot meet or even compromise, for already there is less work being done than should be done and the number of men available is not equal to the plans. The production of steel has not been interfered with materially, but construction of new plant is greatly delayed, and the new steel making capacity that has been counted upon will not be available until long after the dates originally set.

The troubles arising out of the Westinghouse strike are about over, the restoration of order permitting plants to resume that were closed merely from fear of violence, while many of the Westinghouse strikers have returned to work, under the former conditions precisely. While the proposed strike for an eight-hour day in the steel industry of the Pittsburg district proved a complete fizzle there are serious threats of such a movement within the next week in at least one other district.

The pressure for steel deliveries has increased and there is rather widespread dissatisfaction among buyers of many steel products. There is a relatively large amount of buying at premium prices for early deliveries. Forward deliveries are quite neglected, except in the case of war steel, which is being inquired for in large tonnage not simply for the first half of 1917 but for the whole year.

Steel prices for delivery at mill convenience continue to show at least a slight advancing tendency. The leading interest has advanced its prices on black sheets $5 a ton and prices on blue annealed by $1 to $3.

COAL TRADE IMPROVING

Opening of Lake Trade Season Stimulates Activity and Prices.

Signs are developing to indicate that the bituminous coal trade, which has been dull and inactive for several months, will shortly undergo considerable improvement. Leading operators in the Pittsburg district, who are shipping heavy tonnages up the lakes, are refusing to sell run of mine at less than $1.50 a ton at the mine, but that figure does not represent the actual market by a considerable margin. Some dealers have been selling at as low as $1.15 a ton and rather heavy tonnages are being offered at $1.25 a ton.

Despite the fact that the disagreement arising from the interpretation of the wage scale for 1916-1917 was settled last week, many mines in the Pittsburg district were slow to resume operating in full. Miners in some instances do not even yet appear anxious to return to work, and it may be several days before the complete restoration of normal conditions.

OUR NOTE PROMINENT

Featured in Newspapers: Known No Americans on Cymric.

PARIS, May 10.—Great prominence is given by the newspapers of Paris this morning of the latest American note to Germany, replying to the communication respecting submarine warfare. The American note is spoken of as a masterpiece of diplomacy. The Petit Parisien says:

"If Emperor William desires to catch President Wilson in a trap the Emperor is caught in his own toils. He has met his master. There remains nothing for him to do except either to accept the American note at the risk of raising the fury of the German government parties or to take upon himself the initiative in bringing about a rupture which would entail serious consequences to Germany.

WHAT TO DO FOR NERVOUS INDIGESTION

When nerves go wrong they always seem to strike at your weakest spot. When this spot happens to be the stomach, nervous dyspepsia results, appetite vanishes and gives way to dull, dread, uneasiness and a hollow, gnawing feeling that keeps up until every nerve in your body seems on edge. The foods you force down wont digest properly, and you're all in—down and out for one day at least so far as being really useful to yourself or anyone else is concerned.

It's the height of folly to force the digestion of food with some pepsin pill when the stomach nerves are in such shape. Nervous indigestion comes from the nerves alone. Get the nerves right and all distress will vanish.

Thanks to a remarkable chemical discovery, it is now possible to feed the nerve cells with the exact stimulus they require when overworked and unstrung and a preparation called Margo Nerve Tablets is producing remarkable results in the treatment of Nervous Dyspepsia, and other nerve disorders. They make a remarkable change in many instances in ten minutes by the watch, strengthening the stomach and charging the nerve cells with strength, poise, power, and tremendous reserve energy and giving nerves of steel, a clear head and brain, courage, power, quick wit, and real vital vim. Margo Nerve Tablets cannot harm anyone. They contain no dope or dangerous habit-forming drugs. Forty tablets come in a large package and this is enough to give lasting relief to even the most obstinate cases. Laughrey Drug Co. and other leading druggists everywhere are selling them with a positive guarantee of satisfaction or money back. —Adv.

PIG IRON LIMIT

Has Been Reached, Decreased Production Expected During Summer.

Pig iron production in March and April was at the rate of about 39,500,000 tons a year, and this seems to be approximately the limit that can be attained, says B. E. V. Luty in the Pittsburg Dispatch. As the exceptionally favorable weather of the last two months yields place to warmer weather the output of individual stacks is likely to decrease, while the few idle furnaces that may blow in will hardly balance the stacks that will be forced out of blast from time to time for relining.

The consumption of pig iron, on the other hand, will tend to increase, since various steel works additions are being rushed to completion. The present rate of pig iron production is several million tons in excess of estimates of capacity made a year ago. Production of iron and steel during the remainder of the year may depend in part upon the supply and efficiency of the labor available.
